A SEASON OF CONNECTION, GROWTH, AND HEALING

The Equestrian Center at Fort Sam Houston is expanding opportunities for the community with two programs designed to help participants learn, grow, and build confidence through interactions with horses: Equine-Assisted Learning and Adaptive Riding.

Equine-Assisted Learning (EAL) uses activities with horses to help children, teens, and adults develop important life skills. Participants work alongside horses to practice communication, problem-solving, emotional awareness, trust, and responsibility. Rather than focusing only on riding or horsemanship, EAL makes the horse a partner in the learning process and provides immediate feedback.

For veterans, the program provides a supportive environment to strengthen communication, rebuild confidence and trust, develop healthy coping strategies, and reconnect with a sense of purpose and community. The skills developed through EAL can extend beyond the arena and into family, school, work, and everyday life.

The Equestrian Center will also offer Adaptive Riding, making horseback riding accessible to individuals with physical, cognitive, developmental, sensory, or other disabilities. Instructors adapt lessons, equipment, and activities to meet each rider's needs and goals.

Beyond learning to ride, Adaptive Riding can help improve balance, coordination, strength, focus, and body awareness while building confidence and independence. Reaching a riding goal can also provide riders with a sense of accomplishment and connection.

Together, the two programs welcome children, teens, adults, individuals with disabilities, families, and veterans. Both programs provide an inclusive environment where participants can learn at their own pace and discover their strengths.

At the heart of both programs is a simple belief: everyone has the ability to learn, grow, and succeed. Through the partnership between people and horses, the Equestrian Center at Fort Sam Houston is creating opportunities to overcome barriers, develop life skills, and experience the positive impact of the human-horse connection.
